Hongkong, July 7th, 1894. DE. CANTLIE'S letter to the Sanitary Board is more surprising than conclusive. The second paragraph reads as follows :- "The "epidemic of bubonic plague is ascribed by "public opinion to be due to the bad sani-"tary state, or, in other words, had out "annitary condition not been defective we "would not have had the plague. This will "scarcely bear the light of common sense or "of scientific investigation." But it seems to us that common sense and scientific investigation alike point to the very conclusion the doctor seeks to controvert. Macao bas kong, but the plague has not made its appearance there. How is that? Common sense tells us that it is because the sanitary conditions of Macao are superior to those of Hongkong, and scientific investigation tells us that bubonic plague is a filth disease which cleanliness. It is true that the disease with us is an imported pest, but it is our filthy state that has given it the opportunity to become epidemic. The epidemic, as the dector says, is put down to overcrowding and bad drainage system. He deals first with the drainage and asks what evidence we have that the system is defective. In the first place we have the evidence of our noses; in the second place we have the undisputed fact that certain of the drains were found to have had their outlets blocked appointed by the Sanitary Board a few years up. Common sense and scientific investigation alike tell us that a drain that is blocked up is a source of danger to health But, says Dr. CANTLIE, bad drains cause a train of diseases of which diphtheria, tousillitis, drain throat, diarrhoa, typhoid, and such like are the chief, none of which we had present in epidemic form before the month of May, 1894, nor have we ever had any of these diseases present in other than sporadic cases during the past decade; and he goes on to maintain that " we have do

"every one believes, just as bad drains other day received from the Sanitary Board, "or pneumonia." We are at a loss to know was a single insanitary dwelling in Chinawhat the next sentence means. It reads, "If town or elsewhere in the Colony." The " our drains are bad, correct them | but let qualics appear in the quotation as embodied "us be sure that it is a drain produced disease in His Excellency's minute to the Sanitary CANTLIE SAYS every one believes, that in it- Board" make any difference to the mean-a transition state; a new system having not italicised. That would be rather been introduced with which only a small curious intention, the ordinary use created by the ignorance and carelessness of could have done so the native community. This is a point which might now be put to the test of scientific investigation. We have had a great deal of abuse of the new system, but practically nothing in the shape of actual proof of its breakdown. Although number of houses connected with the system is small as compared with the total number of the purposes of a test; therefore let a drain connected with the separate system to beginning of next year, ascertain in how many cases, the drains have become choked or the traps been o'clock, the steam launch Dayspring, carrying removed. The system rests under suspicion, boisting code penuant C. to convey men ashore but it would be unreasonable to condemn absolutely without going to the trouble of acquiring some definite knowledge of its working. Speaking of the drainage system as a whole, however, it is incomprehensible how Dr. CANTLIE can pronounce it inocuous: The separate system was introduced be-A. S. WATSON & CO., LIMITED, cause the old system was admitted to be defective, and the Colony is still for the most part dependent on the old system.

crowding. Dr. CANTLIE's present utterand on this subject is in atriking contrast with that contained in the report of the Fever Commission, which was signed by him, so far as appears, without reservation. That report states:-"In cities in Europe 1,000 people to an agrois all that is allowed, and the departure from that rule has been proved again and again to foster disease. Allowing for differences in habits and the possibility of having dwelling houses practically open to the air during seven "months in the year, the Commissioners majority of five. The date fixed for the Bill "cannot help believing that the surface to me into force is the 1st August. The Bill "crowding as it at present exists will seri-"ously impair the health of all dwellers, "but more especially the European dwellers, "in the city of Victoria, Hongkong." Which are we to believe, Dr. CANTLER in the present crisis. Russia orges both Powers to 1888 or Dr. CANTLIE in 1894? He tells us now that " For eight or nine months in the ment. "year the windows and doors in our Hong-"kong houses are wide open. The Chinese sleep in the verandah, in the street, in the gutter-anywhere to get cool. The house a not only during the day but during the "night is open to the air, and instead of " having 300 cubic feet of air the Chinaman practically sleeps in the open air of heaven.' During the cold season the win-"dows and doors are no doubt tightly closed, "but any one who has spent a night in a "Chinese house in cold weather will have "altered his notion of its ventilating power "as the cold air pours down from between "the ill-fitting titles on the roof or through "the seams of the floor over head." But sleeping in a Chinese house, that is, a house Belgium built as houses usually are in China, is a very different thing from sleeping in a Taipingshan house. If Dr. CANTLIE were to sleep in the latter we think he would alter his opinion of its ventilating power. been as much exposed to infection as Hong- It is true that in the hottest months many of the males sleep out of doors, but overcrowding is dangerous in winter as well a in summer, and the females and children sleep indoors all the year round.
